At SPARK, we strive to reduce energy waste, empower underrepresented workers, and change the perception that buildings are passive energy consumers. We protect the environment by enabling buildings to intelligently coordinate energy use, reducing unnecessary demand and emissions through our Intelligent Energy Hub. Empowerment of underrepresented communities is demonstrated through our commitment to diverse workforce development partnerships that create job opportunities in installation and maintenance. We will change the perception about energy use in buildings by making consumption transparent, interactive, and user-driven—giving tenants and operators the ability to actively manage their energy priorities. Compared to current industry practices, we are more participatory, equitable, and intelligent in how energy systems are designed and deployed. We believe energy intelligence should be accessible to all, not just to high-end users or large enterprises.
